KILLED BY TRAIN.

Unknown Man at Foxboro, Mass., Last Night.

Foxboro, Mass., April 21.—An unknown man was struck by the merchants' limited express last night near East Foxboro and instantly killed. Medical Examiner Briggs viewed the body and turned it over to Undertaker Belcher to await identification.

The man was about 28 years old, medium light, slender built, light complexion and light brown hair. He wore a double-breasted black cheviot coat, black diagonal trousers, soft grey shirt and black derby hat.

Nothing was found in his pockets except a card bearing the firm name of Charles Woerns & Co., 78 Southbury street, Boston.

Not Due to Lack of Oxygen.

Roxbury, April 21.—Prof. M. C. Marsh, the government expert who has been examining into the cause of the death of a large amount of the trout fry at the hatchery here, says that the cause probably is not due to the lack of oxygen, but that the chemical change in earth will sometimes change spring water, which he thinks is the case in this instance.

The Pointer.

There is as much fallacy in attempting to prove the origin of pointing as in a like attempt to prove the origin of eating. As a matter of fact, the pointing act commonly exhibited by the pointer and setter is an incident of the capture, or attempted capture, of food by dogs, and also by wolves, and foxes. Coyotes have been seen to draw and point on prairie dogs and grouse in precisely the same manner that the pointer and setter draw on game birds. There was the same rigidity and stealth the pause to judge the distance and opportunity, and the final right pause on all the energies are concentrated for the final spring and capture. All the phenomena displayed by the dog family indicate that the drawing and pointing in the pursuit of prey were ever natural traits. It may be reasonably believed that men could not breed the pointing instinct out of the dog if they attempted to do so.—Forest and Stream.

Lightning Strikes Twice.

Investigations made by the agricultural college at Guelph, Ontario, disclose the fact that lightning never strikes twice in the same place. Of course the same building does not usually get struck twice, for it is not there to be hit a second time; but observations show that a number of buildings built successively upon the same spot have been struck. Indeed, some places are especially exposed to lightning, and where two barns in turn have been destroyed by lightning on the same ground, it is very unwise to build a third. Lightning is not like some disease germs, which, having run their course in a person, make him for a given period unhabitable to other germs of the same kind.—Youth's Companion.

Mr. Punch's Home Chirps.

Kneecaps for Sleeves—Dresses are very much worn this season, especially about the elbows, and it will be found that long sleeves will wear much longer if small leather kneecaps are made for the elbow joints. Cut from soft black leather a circular piece, three inches in diameter. Nail it to the elbow with a few small tin tacks. These additions are quite ornamental, and an immense saving to the sleeve.

Gloves—The new kind of washable kids lend themselves most amably to treatment by soap and water. The advantage of wearing them is that you can wash your hands without the trouble of removing your gloves. Bootlaces—It is not generally known that bootlaces, if well waxed, will never come untied, day or night. This is a great convenience for those who habitually wear them.

Coffee Coat—The coffee coat is no longer in favor and the tea gown is less seen. They have been superseded by the Empire gown jacket, which is quite the rage just now. The fashionable tints are orange-yellow, apple-green, cranberry-red tomato, asparagus, watercress—in fact, all the Bernard Shawian or Vegetarian colors.

A $12,000 BOOST.

Montpelier Seminary Helped Along Toward Endowment.

Montpelier seminary, which is trying to raise $150,000 to secure $50,000 from D. R. Parsons of Chicago, was given a boost by the Vermont Methodist conference at Montpelier Saturday.

The Rev. E. C. Bishop, principal of the school, presented a report of the condition of the institution, which he said showed an increase of 18 per cent in attendance. The net receipts were $12,000 more than last year, but a deficiency still remained. He said the outlook for the endowment fund was good. When the entire endowment was available, Mr. Bishop said the institution would step from third or fourth in its class to first place. It would be able to accommodate 500 pupils and the old seminary that had been struggling along for 73 years would be able to do a great work.

The Rev. W. S. Smithers of Waterbury moved the adoption of the following resolution: "Resolved, That as a conference we join in raising an endowment fund of $12,000 for Montpelier seminary by pledging $1 for each member this year and in order to do so give this benevolence right of way in our church collections." The Rev. C. W. Hunt of St. Albans opposed the resolution. He said that without more emphasis than the passing of a resolution it might not amount to more than in former years. He moved that something that would result in action be put into effect today and offered the following resolutions: "Resolved, That the Vermont conference raise $12,000 for the endowment fund of Montpelier seminary during the next three years on condition that the whole amount is raised."

"Resolved, That this amount be divided among the districts and that the presiding elders with a committee of one from each district apportion this amount to the different churches respectively." The Rev. W. M. Newton of Montpelier moved to amend by making the sum $15,000, but his amendment was lost, and Mr. Hunt's resolution prevailed after a prolonged discussion.

The Trout.

Notwithstanding there are more plucky fighters, fish that put up more exciting contests than do the trout, there is not among them all one which gives the average angler such intense enjoyment as do the beautifully colored trout—at home in brook and river, rushing mountain stream and placid forest-embowered lake. It is in these homes of the fish the wisest man find an unspeakable charm and attraction. Fewer contests with the mighty tarpon, the kingfish, the barracuda and the striped bass, or exciting contests with the princely salmon mean nothing to the philosophical mind when compared with the quiet pleasure, the full enjoyment of nature, which comes from following the meanderings of the streamer, and taking from its waters the fish about whose beauties more poetic lines have been written than have been penned upon almost any other subject. That veteran angler Charles Hallock has said that if the preference lay between the extinction of the salmon and trout, the last named fish would, by his choice, remain among us, as he was right, for there is no comparison in the degree of enjoyment that is derived from the pursuit of these fish.—Forest and Stream.
